

TEXTO

Brazil want Mano Menezes to be the new team manager

Brazil have offered Corinthians boss Mano Menezes the job of national team manager after Fluminense refused to release their coach Muricy Ramalho.

Ramalho was first choice but Fluminense want him to fulfil his contract with them, which runs until the end of 2012.

Menezes has led Corinthians, and before them Gremio, out of Brazil's Second Division in recent years.

Brazil are searching for a new coach following Dunga's sacking after their quarter-final exit at the World Cup.

Menezes, 48, will announce his decision at a news conference in Sao Paulo on Saturday.

Tradução Livre No. 594

Brazil want Mano Menezes to be the new team manager Brasil quer Mano Menezes para ser o novo técnico do time

Brazil have offered Corinthians boss Mano Menezes the job of national team manager after Fluminense refused to release their coach Muricy Ramalho.

O Brasil ofereceu ao técnico do Corinthians o emprego de técnico do time nacional após o Fluminense recusar-se a liberar o seu técnico Muricy Ramalho.

Ramalho was first choice but Fluminense want him to fulfil his contract with them, which runs until the end of 2012.

Ramalho foi a primeira escolha, mas o Fluminense quer que ele cumpra seu contrato com o time, o qual vai até o final de 2012.

Menezes has led Corinthians, and before them Gremio, out of Brazil's Second Division in recent years.

Menezes levou o Corinthians, e antes dele o Grêmio, para fora da Segunda Divisão do Brasil em anos recentes.

Brazil are searching for a new coach following Dunga's sacking after their quarter-final exit at the World Cup.

O Brasil está procurando por um novo técnico seguindo a saída de Dunga após a saída nas quartas-de-final na Copa do Mundo.

Menezes, 48, will announce his decision at a news conference in Sao Paulo on Saturday.

Menezes, 48 anos, anunciará sua decisão em uma coletiva em São Paulo no Sábado.